Digital Scholarship Quick Facts

Digital Scholarship Group (DSG)
The DSG provides tools, training, and support to researchers in a wide range of disciplines within the Northeastern community, helping them to publish and preserve their research and to utilize new techniques of representation, analysis, and dissemination in scholarly research. For more information, visit dsg.neu.edu.

Scholarly Communication
The Scholarly Communication program supports researchers at all levels who want to extend the impact of their scholarly output through retaining their author rights, making their work available open access, and exploring new modes of dissemination. Visit library.northeastern.edu/services/scholarly-communication to learn more about scholarly communication services and initiatives.

The Digital Repository Service (DRS)
The DRS is Northeastern University’s next generation secure repository where the Northeastern community can store, access, and share digital materials produced or used in teaching, research and service activities. The DRS launched in October 2014. Visit repository.northeastern.library.edu.

Digital Scholarship Commons (DSC)
The DSC houses Digital Scholarship departments within Snell Library. The DSC is a collaborative, interdisciplinary environment where faculty and doctoral students engage in research and instruction, consult with experts and colleagues to advance their academic projects, and share best practices in the use of technology and information resources. Visit dsc.neu.edu for more information.

Services
In partnership with the Digital Scholarship Commons the library’s Digital Scholarship Group and research and instruction librarians work with the Center for Advancing Teaching and Learning Through Research (CATLR) and Academic Technology Services (ATS) to provide the following support:

- Technology solutions for teaching and research
- Project development and sustainability
- Training/support for instructional technologies
- Development of digital content and use of the Digital Repository Service
- Copyright, publishing, and issues of intellectual property
- Training in citation tools and new databases
- Media creation, reformatting and integration
- Workshops/training on digital research methods

DSG Workshops
The Digital Scholarship Group offers workshops and training sessions on a wide range of topics at both introductory and advanced levels. Topics include TEI, Omeka, the Digital Repository Service, copyright and fair use, data curation and creation, and project management. For information on upcoming workshops, visit dsg.neu.edu/events.

Discussions @ DSC
All faculty and graduate students are invited to a series of informal discussions exploring the role of digital technologies in teaching, learning, and research. Sponsored by the Digital Scholarship Group, Academic Technology Services, and the Center for Advancing Teaching and Learning Through Research. Visit dsc.neu.edu/events-and-workshops/ for upcoming discussions.

Center for Advancing Teaching and Learning through Research (CATLR)
Located in the DSC, CATLR provides teaching consultations covering topics such as syllabus design, online and hybrid course planning, and technology integration. To make an appointment contact Dr. Cigdem Talgar at c.talgar@neu.edu or by phone at (617) 373-4584.

Spaces for Digital Scholarship
Snell Library offers a variety of spaces to support scholarly work. In the DSC there are spaces for project meetings, small group collaboration, and consultation with members of CATLR, ATS, and DSG. There is also a media lounge, which is perfect for group discussions and presentations.

Collaborative workspaces may be reserved for up to two hours at a time. Faculty and doctoral students may contact dsc-ops@neu.edu or call (617) 373-4351 for more information and reservations.
